

Discover more about dentistry at the HKU Summer Programme 2009

The HKU Faculty of Dentistry is offering the chance to school students and non-HKU undergraduates to find out more about dentistry and oral health at its summer school, as part of the HKU Summer Programme 2009.

Taking place from 27 to 31 July 2009, the "Dentistry and Oral Health" programme will allow participants to learn about different oral health conditions and the importance of good oral hygiene, and to get a taste of student life at the Faculty of Dentistry and HKU campus.

The 1-week summer school is open to local and overseas secondary school Form 5/6 students and overseas undergraduates who are interested in dentistry or pursuing a career in the dental profession.

Special activities include problem-based learning tutorials, laboratory practicals, clinical sessions, and group projects, as well as social events and plenty of opportunities to interact with Faculty teachers and current students.

Past participants said the activities "allow students to think, be independent and learn to express ourselves freely instead of only studying a book", and "We've got a chance to experience a day at the clinic with a dentist. It's really unexpected and truly amazing!"
